

I oppose the weakening of Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law. In the past when companies had the right to call the house, I received several calls throughout the evening and it became a nuisance. Even when I did talk to some one and tell them I was not interested in their business or answered their questions, I still would receive numerous phone calls. If I need information from one of these banks, then I should be able to make the choice in calling them, not vice versa.